Praud and crime appear so an epidemic and excite both wonder and alarm at the rapidly accumulating record which swells with the names of fresh candidates for the succeeding day. We had scarcely recovered from the Morron surprise in Philadelphia, from the Morron surprise in Philadelphia, when comes the Gilman fraud in New York, to heap wonders on wonder's head. Both these men held high social positions and were counted respectable, as the world counts respectability. They shared largely our production in agriculture. We are additionated to anticontend the production of the pro counts respectability. They shared largely of public respect and confidence but both now are shown up as unmitigated hypocrites and knaves. Monron's fraud aggregates $1,500,000, for which he offers nothing in the way of mitigating his crime. It was deliberately committed and persistently followed up for years without any reason therefor except what seems to be found in the evil promptings of his own nature.

The case of GILMAN is, perhaps, less in ormity, but none the less to be reprebended. His financial rascalities, so far as discovered, only amount to $500,000, but the professions of the man as a high-toned religionist, and the distance which he has fallen, tend greatly to magnify the enor-mity of his offense. His family descent relations and connections were of the highest respectability. He was at the head agnest respectatiny. He was at the head of a large and homorable business, that had been established by his father, and in which he had himself acquired a good repu-tation for probity. His social relations were not only extensive, but of the better For a man of business he was posessed of large, and, we might say, un mon culture, and hence was identified with other interests which were above mere ney-making. And, with all this, he is represented as a man without vicious habits. But, in the midst of all these apafeguards, he has fallen. While he has en cognizant of his own crimes, and must have known that "murder will out" soone or later, he has systematically added crime to crime until the disclosure came, and he sow occupies a criminal's status in the pub There is a lesson in this which none can afford to disregard. The Sertures admonish us, "Let him who thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall," and in this day and age of temptation no one disregard the injunction.

ese instances of crime filled the catalogue of depredations upon the rights and interests of society, we would confine our remarks to them, but they do not. There offences which may not legally wear character of crime, but which are none the less grievous. Take, for instance, the savings banks where the poor have in their confidence deposited their hard but scanty carnings for safety, and they present re peated instances in which the most grievous ongs and sufferings have been inflicted by mismanagement and dishonesty which akin to crime itself. Of these se or five have failed in the city of Chicago recently under circumstances calculated to call down upon them public malediction. The poor are defrauded out of their pittances, and the suffering entailed thereby is incalculable. This calamity is not confined to our own country, but the epidemic has strend to the Canadian Dominion, where people of Montreal are suffering largely by the failure of savings institutions that the tide of dishonesty and crime is increasing in volume, and threatens business

Then the flood will be checked--confidence will return to the marts of business and trade, and mutual respects will be re-stablished between man and man. Without these there is no comfort or safety in f out these there is no commert or salety in the conduct of business where everything bravery and strategy. He has been several hangs on the confidence and respect which man bears towards his neighbor in the con-.plications of trade and commerce. When these mecalities shall have been punished, and the rogue finds that the penalty of erime is to inevitably follow, crime will di-minish, mutual confidence will be restored, and the business of the country will again put on health and march forward to prosperity. A want of confidence in individual they soon learned that they had waked up integrity and public policies has had much the wrong passenger. A MAGNIFICENT SCHEME.

We desire to call attention to a letter lately written by Hon. CASEY YOUNG, member of Congress from Tennessee, to the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Memphis, Tean., from which we present liberal extracts. It has for its purpose to induce Congress to enter upon the scheme of appropriating $45,000,000 to improve the Mississippi river and protect its banks from overflow, thus recovering a vast territory of land that is devastated by periodical floods. tribune of justice and the penitentiary each | The scheme is on a magnificent scale, and rather of a tempting character. The $45,not disposed to antagonize this project, but present its leading features for public con-sideration. Wo will venture one suggestion, however, in this connection, and that is, that the territory thus reclaimed and rendered productive shall be added to the territory of Government lands exposed for sale, and thus aid through their proceeds in reimbursing the amount expended for their reclamation. We have no idea that this sum, large as it is, will cover half the expense of the project if carried out, but it will do to begin with. It is the recognized duty of the Government to appropriate moneys for the purpose of rendering the highways of internal commerce open and navigable, but it is a new idea that it is any part of its duty to protect private prop-erty against the periodical or occasional floods which attend our great water ways.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTOR STEELE yesterday received orders from Admiral Howki.i. in effect that in consequence of certain reprecommandant of the Washington navy yard, and at the recommendation of the chief constructor of the navy, his orders of the 3d instant are so modified that he will consider himself detached from "temporary duty" at the yard upon the reporting of his relief. This virtually puts Constructor STRELE on active duty. We understand that Commodore FERIGER, the commandant of the yard, was active in procuring Mr. STERLE'S restoration to duty.

over the fact that Lient, Bullis and Col. SCHAFTER crossed with a few troops into Mexican territory, and declare that there is a preconcerted plan to force a war with Mexico. Sensible men have read the order to Gen. Out, and know that it is only intended to protect citizens of the United States from murder and robbery, and that it was the only way in which the citizens of the Mexican border can be protected. It istration will adopt measures as effectual for the protection of all our citizens at home and abroad as they have for those on the border. It is the supreme of folly to say that we must any longer depend upon the promises of the Mexican Government. For thirty years it has been promising to pre-vent raids over the border. The Central Government has always lacked in the past, and now lacks either the power or the in clination to keep their promises. The banditti chieftains of the border have power enough to overturn any central govern-ment that would undertake the task of preventing their raids. The only course for the United States to pursue is the one it has taken. Patience has had its perfect work. Thirty years have exhausted it, and now self-protection demands that we should show these banditti of the border that the There have been recently several cases of mbezzlements, robberies frands and formation of the many several cases of mbezzlements, robberies frands and formation of the many several cases of the many several cases of the mbezzlements, robberies frands and formation of the many several cases of the many s in fact, that country will be benefited by Bashi Bazouks that of the Turkish soldiers.

IT IS PLEASANT to announce that the manages of the Lake Shore road have voluntarily issued an order to all officers and employees whose pay amounts to less than $2,000 per annum, and who were affected by the ten per cent. reduction in July, notifying them of an advance of five per cent, in compensation. It is well known that the railroads are now en-joying a harvest of freight, but instances of their restoring reduced wages voluntarily are not frequent. Mesers. THE Board of Trustees of the Perbody Edu-cation Fund have done a very graceful thing in conferring the compliment upon Prosident HAVES of electing bim one of the board of HAYES of electing film one of the local of trustees of this fund. Especially is this so from the fact that it was the Southern members of the board who nominated him to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Jackson, of Georgia. It is the custom of the board to have the Southern trustees make the selection to supply any vacancies occurring in the membership from their section, and their action was a pleasant surprise to the Northern members of the board.
